Session 1: Economy Roundtable – Focus on Traceability

Traceability - Can Authenticity be Guaranteed? Steve Guy, Wine Australia

Moderators: Steve Guy, Wine Australia and Mauricio Garcia Perera, Grupo Cetto, Mexico

Economies to come prepared to answer the following questions. Questions among economies are encouraged.

1. Does your economy impose traceability requirements on wine? If so, what records or documents must be produced or maintained when wine is traded between parties?
2. Do those requirements apply to imported wine?
3. How long must the records be retained?
4. Are these requirements applied to ensure wine safety, wine quality, wine authenticity, or to some combination of these three elements?
5. Has your economy mandated any product recalls involving wine in the past 10 years? If so, why was the recall initiated?

6. Labelling requirements such as lot or batch numbers, and the name and address of the importer are common aids to traceability. Import certificates can also be used to track and trace wine. Is your economy planning to introduce any additional traceability requirements?
7. Which governmental authority, agency or Ministry in your economy (if any) is responsible for implementing and controlling the wine traceability system? For example, which authority has access to the wine trading records?

Morning Tea will be served during this session.
